

Connecting the Dots

WITH STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Instructions: Use a piece of paper, poster paper, and/or a white board and start writing all the “groups” in your building/school. Here is a sample – your list should be much more extensive. Next, list all the activities/events you do. How are these groups connected to the events you are planning? Who are you missing?

Now start to think about all the activities you do . . . who is included? Who is excluded? Who are you missing? What can you do differently to make sure that ALL students and staff are connected? Yes, ASB technically means Associated Student Body; however, YOUR job is to make sure YOUR ASB is working towards making your school a place where All Students Belong.

“When students feel connected to their school, their teachers and to their peers, academic performance improves. Improve school climate by building strong connections and your school’s performance will improve.” —Mark Scharenbroich

For questions about “Connecting the Dots” please email Sara at sara@oasc.org
This handout can be found Online at OASC.org

